

ABOUT THE DIRECTORS

Carly Evans is a graduate of New York University's Tisch School of the Arts with a B.F.A. in Drama and a double major in English. She graduated from NYU in 2000, and spent the next four years in New York (with brief travels to Vermont), performing, directing, choreographing, and teaching. She spent three summers at the Saxtons River Playhouse, a professional summer stock company in Vermont, working as an actor, director, and choreographer. In New York, she performed with the Broadway Dance Center Student Showcases, and she worked as a teaching artist at City Lights Youth Theatre in Times Square. In 2004, she moved back to Massachusetts to pursue her teaching goals. In addition to her work at Lincoln-Sudbury Regional High School as English teacher and director in the Drama Department, she directs and choreographs at Concord Youth Theatre, heading up their Young Adult Performance Company, as well as directing and choreographing for many area schools and theatres, including Newton South High School, Gann Academy in Waltham, Babson College, the Concord Players, and Riverside Theatre Works in Hyde Park. She has not lost her passion for performing, though, not long ago performing in She Loves Me with the Concord Players, which garnered her Best Supporting Actress award from the New England Association of Community Theatres (EMACT). She is married to Ryan DuBray who has provided extensive technical theatre support here at Curtis and is Director of Technical Theatre Studies at the Middlesex School. They have a son, Ethan, who all agree is adorable!

Jane Raithel attended the University of Texas where she studied music theory and orchestration with Kent Kennan. She has been the accompanist at Framingham State College since 1999. In addition, Jane is also the accompanist for the Natick Public School system as well as resident music director for the Concord Youth Theatre. She is also employed as the CoDirector of Christian Education at the Pilgrim Church in Sherborn MA. Jane has served as a music director for many public school theatrical programs including, Lexington, Lincoln -Sudbury, Natick, Dover-Sherborn and Newton. She lives in Natick with her husband and five children.
